

U.S. Department of Education

Known for his expertise on high school "reinvention," Tony was a keynote speaker and panelist for the first United States Department of Education Small Learning Communities National Conference. he has since been invited to speak in school districts establishing Small Learning Communities in a number of states, including North Carolina, New Mexico, and Texas.